you going to do?

Imitate them! Well, then, come to the meeting on Thursday night. Come, and hear from good old Maryland! Come, and learn how to maintain your rights. Come, and come resolved that as Americans. you are determined that you will rule America.

SATURDAY NIGHT .- The old hero, Dentatus, when asked by a Roman citizen the question "What's to be done?" replied, "You're to be undone—that's to be done!" So, in reply to the same question from a citizen of Washington, we "You are to be undone!" Your undoing has begun. Who would have thought or believed that Washington City would ever be given up to the tender mercies of rowdyism, lawlessness, and crime? Who, that was present on Pennsylvania avenue on Saturday night, would not have thought it some tented field, the scene of recent battle, with the forces broken up into squads, marching, with arms in their hands, to join their colors.

Such was the appearance of things on the great thoroughfare of Washington on Saturday night about 11 o'clock. Squads of men, with bars of wood across their shoulders, were marching to and fro, frightening and threatening citizens, and having things all their own way.

In relation to the disturbances of that night we have endeavored to obtain facts, which we proceed to give.

The Intelligencer of Monday connects the dir turbances which occurred in the Northern Liberties with the alarm of fire which was sounded in the early part of the evening, as though the disturbances were caused or produced by that alarm. The fact is, as is well known, these occurrences took place two hours subsequent to that alarm, and after all the apparatus of all the companies was housed, and had no connection whatever therewith. They were caused by that spirit of rowdyism and insubordination so prevalent in our city since "Bloody Monday," and which has been winked at by those in authority, and abetted by others, who are expectants of office, and stand prepared to step into the shoes of those who may decline re-election, having something more profitable in view, or who may resign their positions in view of the Marshalship.

A certain alderman, notorious for voting in confirmation of his own decisions, has latterly been seen in close communion with some of the leading spirits of this rowdy organization, at late hours of the night, and no later than Saturday night was heard to exclaim to an intimate friend, upon coming out of Centre Market, where a disturbance was going on, "By God! I thought it was some of the States Hose boys, regulating matters in there!" What do these things argue? Do they not prove that there is an understanding—that this rowdy element is present in Washington for a purpose-and do they not satisfactorily account for the impunity with which deeds of blood are committed in our midst? The people must take this matter into their own hands if they would live in peace and quiet-if they would protect their wives and daughters from insult, and free themselves from lawless violence and murderous

About a quarter before 9 o'clock in the evening a false fire alarm, in the direction of Georgetown, gave the desired excuse for the marshalling the glans.

The States Hose Company, some hundred strong, rushed up the Avenue in the direction of the First Ward, but were intercepted at Sixth street by the Guards; but the officers only succeeded in stopping them after having turned the Company's reel. When amosite the Perseverance engine house one air number snapped a pistol at an individu ose name we have forgotten, who was standing to front of the building, and was proceeding to further violence, but was prevented by other members of the company.

About half past ten o'clock the police, accom panied by two members of the States Hose, Carter and Richardson, proceeded to the neighborhood of the Northern Market, where a number of young men were amusing themselves in singing and conversation, when one of the Guard ordered a young man by the name of Dawson to stop singing. Dawson replied that he was not disturbing any one, and that he did not know that the officer had any right to make him shut his mouth. Thereupon Carter urged his arrest, and without any further ado they arrested Dawson and started for the watch house. Dawson turned to some of his companions and asked them if they were going to allow him to be dragged off in that way for the cheat not discovered until too late to obtain renothing. Immediately some of the arresting dress. Strangers visiting Washington, who do not next fited a pistol, which caused the young men wish to be cheated, should obtain their backs from to return the shot. A pretty general firing then the regular stands. These drivers, we are informed, ensued, in the course of which Watehman Klopfer received the shot in the eye.

"While this was going on, some twenty-five young men, understood to belong to the States Hose Company, went to the Central Guard-House and stating that they understood there was a spree in the Northern Liberties, volunteered their services to assist the officers. They were informed that Captain Mills, who was the only person authorized to accept such service, was not in. The party then left, and went up Seventh street, and common rumor indicates them, or members of the same company, as the persons who about this time made a most outrageous attack upon the restau-rant of Mr. John T. Hallack, President of the rant of Mr. John T. Hallack, President of the Northern Liberties' Fire Company, and whose place is at the corner of G and Seventh streets, opposite the Patent Office.

"A man entered the G street door, and walked up to Mr. George Turner, butcher, who was standing at the bar, patted him on the shoulder, and said, 'Ain't you a good member of the Northern Liberties?" Turner replied that he was not, but that he was a good Know Nothing. The man said he thought so, and immediately went to the door and gave three whistles as a signal to parties outside. He then came back to Turner, placing his hand on his shoulder, saying, 'I thought you was a bully Know Nothing,' and instantly hauled off and struck Turner a violent blow, which stretched him senseless upon the floor.

"At that instant bands of men rushed in from the Seventh street and G street entrances, and be-

SUNDAY'S RIOTING. The following particulars we copy from The

The following particulars we copy from The States.

"From 8 o'clock Sunday morning until late at night, that portion of the city north and northwest of the Capitol was the scene of most disgraceful and riotous conduct. The locality selected was within a space of a half-dozen squares around the new buildings erested by the Hon. Mr. Rice, Judge Douglas, and Vice President Breckinridge.

"On the Saturday night previous, small parties of vagabond negroes—boys from ten years old and upwards, and men in fissh apparel, wearing caps and illustrated vests—assembled around different corners and annused their leisure by firing pistols at tree-boxes and insulting persons passing. The report of fire-arms was of constant occurrence, and to avoid the random shots, houses were generally closed.

"These proceedings were only preliminary to the grand saturalia of blackguardism that reigned during the whole of the ensuing Sabbath. Early in the morning the vagabond hordes assembled in full force between 2d, 3d, and I streets, and inaugurated the day's proceedings by impudent staring at luckless servant girls whose duties called them from the shelter of their homes. Gentlemen and ladies going to church were greeted with language too obscene for repetition. When such demonstrations failed to attract notice, the unwashed vagabonds would dance around the persons intended to be insulted, frequently jostling them from the sidewalks.

"Some of the crowd being threatened with arrest by the police, shouted out—'D—n the police—who cares for the police!"

"At one house an attempt was made to break open the blinds of the lower windows, and one more daring outlaw thrust a pistol through a parlor window, with loud threats of defiance.

"At the corner of New Jersey avenue and K street north, about 4 o'clock, the cry of "fight" was raised, and vagabonds from all directions rushed to the spot. Peaceable citizens fied in terror, and were fired at as they ran. A dozen shots were aimed at them, but whether any one was injured, could not be ascertained, in consequence of were aimed at them, but whether any one was injured, could not be ascertained, in consequence of the great confusion and terror that prevailed.

"In view of the great danger to life, several persons closed their houses, and, retreating by back ways, sought shelter for the night in distant parts of the city.

"No arrests were made; not a solitary policeman was seen in the neighborhood, until late in the evening. The crash of small-arms and the shouts of lawless gangs continued far into the night, and confusion and terror reigned supreme.

Rownyism .- On Sunday night some eight or ten embers of the Western Hose were arrested by fficers Dewdney and Dewey, assisted by some of the newly-appointed watchmen, and placed in the Western lock-up, no guard being kept over them. During the night they cut out one of the bars, with which they prized out other bars, and made their escape. They were arrested for fight-ing and raising a disturbance in the neighborhood of the African church. They have not been heard rom since, and probably will not

It is singular that some individuals are guarded and others not, in that latitude!

JUNE, 1858.-We are informed, and our informant is prepared to prove what he asserts, and is an old resident and a reliable man, that fifteen tributed among the Irish and foreign population of Washington, and that three hundred more have been ordered by Roman Catholic associations to be distributed among clubs expected to be present in Washington on the first Monday of June next, to interfere with, and prevent Americans from exercising their privileges as freemen on that oc-casion. Forewarned, forearmed. Americans, do not slight this warning.

QUERR.—We are requested to ask what connection Alderman Bailey has with the States Hose Company and why he is frequently seen in close communion with some of its members? On Thursday night, be-tween ten and eleven o'clock, he was seen in consultation with some of them at the corner of Third and Pennsylvania avenue.

A New Dongs.-Certain of the rowdy elemen among us have devised a new mode of raising the wind, which mode operates very injuriously toward an honest and deserving class of men, whose fees are regulated by law, and who are never known to demand more than legal fare. It appears that some owners or drivers of backs who operate at night, are in the habit of charging strangers arriving in the night trains at the depot five dollars, which they tell them includes the fare to Richmond. Twice within are accompanied by one or more individuals, who aid in carrying out the imposition, and who, we presume share the spoils.

Reasons why the "States Hose' Crowd have not been arrested.

WASHINGTON, November 2, 1857. Ms. EDITOR: You have asked several times in your paper, of late, why the police (?) of our city lo not arrest those cut throat villains of the States Hose, who are nightly prowling about our city, committing all kinds of rascality; and I desire to furnish to your readers at this time the remarks of two of Mayor Magruder's beautiful police, made yesterday, in the presence of some of ur most respectable citizens..

Yesterday afternoon, while standing on Seventh treet in conversation with several citizens, Polic nan Ross, of the Third Ward, said that the olice went, a few days ago, to arrest some of the States Hose party, and when they entered the srowd, they (the States Hose) immediately drew their revolvers and said, "If you police do not let us alone we will join the Plug Uglies!" and that upon their (the police) hearing the above threat made they immediately left them, fearing, no doubt, that if they persisted in making the arrest, Mayor Magruder would lose their aid in the persecution he is now carrying on against the Northern Liberties Fire Company. And in proof that he is now engaged in such a persecion, let me here inform your readers of a remark man who once belonged to the American party. Upon being asked, on Pennsylvania avenue, yes erday, why it was that they did not arrest som of the States Hose crowd on Saturday night last, he said that "they could not, for the Mayor of the city had on that evening requested them (the States Hose) to assist the Auxiliary Guard in rresting the members of the Northern Libertie city. Would it not be well for our citizens to asse ole, without regard to party, in mass meeting and request the man who now holds the office of Mayor of our city-and, as everybody knows, btained the office by illegal votes, and who, at a subsequent election, wantonly had quiet and peaceable citizens butchered in our streets-to esign the office immediately, that we may have in opportunity of placing some one in the office who will respect our citizens and restore the peace of the city to the standard it occupied under our late and lamented Mayor Towers.

JUSTICE. P. S .- I have been credibly informed that Mayor Magruder has appointed members of the States Hose on the police, under the bill lately passed by the Councils. What do Messrs. Bayley and Orme think of it now?

"A STITCH IN TIME."—The Boston Courier says:—"A young lady passenger in one of the Mount Pleasant cars, a day or two ago, came very near getting the hats of the gentlemen, who noticed a singular and unexpected display of good sense and prudence on her part. On entering the car, her dress caught, and was considerably torn, the rent presenting a very unhandsome appearance in contrast with the exceeding neatness of her apparel. As soon as she was scated she removed her kids, and diving into the recesses of a tiny pocket, brought out a needle and a bit of thread, after uniting which, with most dexterous manipulation, she set to work to repair damages, and very soon spread out the folds of her robe as complete and whole as if no accident had ever occurred. The materials of industry were then re-deposited in their resting place, and the lady assumed her kids, and an attitude of repose, smiling triumphautly." "A STITCH IN TIME."-The Boston Courie
